

THREE TRUCKS, a car and a boat were all involved in a chain reaction accident Thursday when a semi-truck driven by Gene B. Crain of Orlando failed to stop in time to avoid striking a line of vehicles stopped for construction on US27 just south of South Bay. Florida Highway Patrol Trooper

ing hole underneath the rim canal bridge Tuesday, Aug. 1 when his pulling in beam in a favorite fish-adventure began.

Andy said he'd been fishing to the side of the bridge, off the fender structure designed to keep passing boats from striking the piling supporting the turntable of the swing bridge.

He said he left his spot to the side of the bridge to join two younger fishermen, about 8 and 9 years old. About 15 minutes after he'd joined the two snuffly, the younger one started to get up, lost his balance and fell into the deep water of the main channel.

Andy said he asked the other youngster, who was still perched on the six-inch beam they were fishing from, if the boy who fell in could swim.

"He said the other boy couldn't swim," Andy said later, "so I dove in after him." He said the unidentified boy was about eight feet deep when he reached him, pulled him to the surface and towed him to one of the pilings on the fender system, climbed up himself and pulled the boy up after him.

Andy said the boy's parents were fishing off the bank about a quarter mile north of the bridge and as soon as the two youths thanked him, they went to join the younger boy's parents. "I never did ask him his name," Andy said, "but I don't believe the other kid was his brother. I think he was a friend along with the family."

Andy said he has often walked out on the undecked structure to fish. He said he had already pulled in "15 or 16 bluegills" that day be-

BELLE GLADE--A 13-year-old fisherman who dove into the rim canal last week to save the life of a younger angler inadvertently drew the attention of the state to a dangerous situation and could be responsible for a new fishing facility.

Andy Fontaine, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fontaine of 201 N.W. Ave. K, said he was busily there or by bringing in others if needed.

Dr. Jose Alvarez, a scientist at the center who arranged the rice field day along with County Extension Agent Kenneth Schuler, said approximately 700 acres of rice were planted and harvested this year, producing some top quality rice.

Dr. Alvarez said all the rice planted so far, while some is being sold commercially, is basically experimental in nature. It is the first rice planted in some years except what has been used as a cover crop.

Dr. Mullins pointed out to the farmers in the meeting that should they decide to plant rice and sell it in the state and adjoining states, they would be in competition with brands already on the market.

He said it would take the production of 25,000 acres of rice to satisfy Florida's current consumption but went on to say the market shouldn't be limited to the state.

Dr. Mullins said there are also other possible markets in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, as well

The meeting took place at the Agricultural Research and Education Center (AREC) here and Dr. D.L. Myhre, the center director, said the center has the capability of providing support, either by diversifying efforts of scientists and technicians already being considered as a crop and Dr. Troy Mullins, a U.S. Department of Agriculture economist, painted an inviting picture, pointing out that Florida and the other Southeastern states consume more rice than any area of the country except for the Middle Atlantic region.

The public informational meeting, one of a series taking place around the county, was held in Bryant Auditorium at the Glades Office Building for the purpose of acquainting Glades residents with what would be accomplished by adopting the proposed charter when it comes before the voters Nov. 7.

What the county staff members, including County Administrator John Sansbury, County Attorney Richard Ellington and Assistant County Attorney Charles Vituna, who has been working on the proposed charter for some time, may not have known was that they were walking into a hornet's nest of opposition.

The two attorneys, in particular, were accused several times of supporting the charter until County Commissioner Bill Bailey, who was chairing the meeting, pointed out toward the end of the meeting, that they were appearing at the request of the commission in an informational capacity rather than in an attempt to sell the charter.

Vituna first went into the charter by guiding those interested through the fifth draft of the document, pointing out changes which would be made under the proposition.

Taking the proposed charter article by article, he pointed out that some of the changes would be that it would:

- Mandate a county manager. This is now the case but the administrator could be abolished by the commission.
- Require county commission candidates to have lived within their districts at least six months before qualifying to run for the office.
- Require the county manager, within 90 days of the charter's adoption, to prepare an administrative code containing rules of procedure, organization of the

Rice explored as new area crop

BELLE GLADE--With a chance of turning a profit on fields which have traditionally lain fallow for months at a time, 140 Glades area farmers turned out Tuesday to hear about the possibility of commercially raising rice.

High prices in the past year's crop was one of the reasons rice is being considered as a crop and Dr. Troy Mullins, a U.S. Department of Agriculture economist, painted an inviting picture, pointing out that Florida and the other Southeastern states consume more rice than any area of the country except for the Middle Atlantic region.

County charter decried

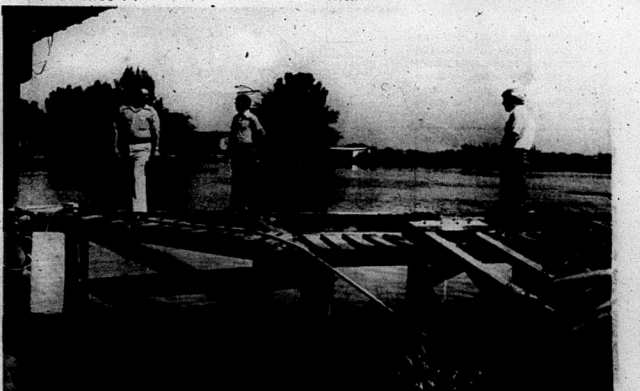

BELLE GLADE--A flag mounted upside down is known as the sign of distress and that should have given warning to county commission staff members of the kind of reception they could expect Monday night when they presented the proposed Palm Beach County Charter.

The public informational meeting, one of a series taking place around the county, was held in Bryant Auditorium at the Glades Office Building for the pur-

BRIDGE IMPROVEMENTS were the topic of discussion Monday when DOT Assistant Maintenance Engineer Jim Eldridge met on the fender system with Belle Glade City

If you liked the historical issue, just wait! You see our hurricane issue which will be coming out in September.

The historical issue was about the first 50 years of Belle Glade and came out in April. Now we are working hard to produce an anniversary issue of the 1928 storm that killed over 2,000 people in the Glades.

Right now, we're interviewing people who went through the storm or who came into Belle Glade, Pahokee and South Bay after the storm to help with the cleanup.

The tales of death, terror and destruction we are getting are worthy of the best horror movie. I'll quote from an interview with one of the people we've talked to.

"Mr. Elliott and I were still in the house. I had tied one of his boot strings around my little finger so I could keep up with him (her husband) because I was afraid to hold on to him because I thought I was afraid enough to drown somebody. Well, I didn't drown anybody. The house went below the water and I got a deep breath and went under to try to handhold the window sill and get through the window. Mr. White wasn't able to breathe and grabbed my feet around the ankles and jerked me back and I was under the water. But I got a hold of the window and kicked him off so I could get on through the window. Then I got out and I thought, 'Well now, I've drowned that man!' and I got to feeling around with my feet and he grabbed my feet again and I dug him up by the coat collar and he got out."

That's only one. We have many more and more scheduled. But this lady's tale of the fear she went through trying to get out of a sinking house is an example of what those people went through.

I've often said the history of the Glades is more interesting than any other like-sized chunk of real estate in this country. The people who settled here had to contend with wild Indians, wild animals, and wild country.

That they taxed it is a measure of their courage. But they did so at the cost of their lives, in many cases. The hardships these people took in stride cannot be comprehended by those of us who have arrived late in the development of the Glades.

Today, the challenges faced are different, but there are still many here. We have it in our power to create the most attractive lifestyle in Florida. All we have to do is work together to create it.

There are many problems in the Glades. And for each problem, somewhere there is a solution. It may be that people living here today have ideas that can result in problems being solved but they haven't come forward to discuss them.

The key to making the Glades the best living and working area in the country is involvement. By involvement, I mean people coming forth, discussing issues, seeking ways to make things better. People must have pride in their community and in themselves.

Those who have gone before us have shown the way. Now it's up to us to continue those efforts before it's too late, before the problems we have in the Glades today become those that now exist on the coasts of the state.

CRACKER CRUMBS

BY DEAN JONES

With the growing number of state and local elections being held in today's election campaigns, it shouldn't have been much of a surprise but the idea of a political grape stomp still has the distinction of fitting right into the scheme of things while staying unusual.

The historic event is scheduled to come off in Tallahassee the 26th of this month and it's being sponsored by the Florida Grape Grower's Association.

With the information given in the news release by the grape growers, the picture of just what is expected in a grape stomp, particularly a political grape stomp, is still more than a little vague.

There's no doubt it's some kind of contest with politicians providing the competition but the goal isn't spelled out. Whether the stompers are supposed to stomp more grapes faster or whether it's just a marathon with the last person still on his or her feet wins just isn't clear at all.

It's probably safe to assume the politicians aren't expected to finish what they start because the making of wine, even homemade wine, takes several months.

But there are still any number of questions left unanswered. Like what the rules are, not to mention the goals, whether points will be given or taken away for making a campaign speech to the rhythm of the stomp cadence and just what happens to the wine that's the end product.

Will a vintage '78 musical costume more because it was stomped by the next governor, whoever that may be or will a political flash in the pan yield a rarer vintage because two years from now, the only way he'll be remembered will be because his name is on a bottle of port?

And along with these serious considerations, there's another critical question. Will future winebeers appreciate his bottle of T.J. Night Train more if he realizes the grapes were squoze to death by the well-formed toes of Paula Hawkins or by the hairy legs of Jack Ruby?

Come to think of it, where is the significance of the ERA? Will the women demand equal time and will Emperor Claudius think that just because his feet are purple that should give him a legitimate claim to the throne...or mansion, whatever.

It's a shame this is the first grape stomp because if it'd been held four years ago, we might have been treated to the demands of Brother Bevin that since he's a teetotaler, he'd want his product to go as plain juice.

On to other hand, seeing as how the stomp is taking place this year, maybe Bob Graham could count it as a long day. The long day, might even include it in the reprint of his book with the chapter titled, "Stomp, Stomp Them Grapes".

Guess he'd run into copyright problems there, though. That's one title that already belongs to M-M-M.

Speaking of political stumps, though, there's a couple, one long standing and one sorta recent that even beats out a grape stomp.

The long-standing one is a joke brought up by every politician who qualifies for the first time for some office ranging anywhere from dogcatcher to president, when he comes up with the old bromide that, "I'm really a businessman (or farmer, or pharmacist or lineticker), not a politician."

Phil Lewis, who doesn't claim to be an amateur politician, had the answer to that one. They can protest all they want to but the minute they plunk down their qualifying fee and take the oath of a candidate, brother, they're politicians.

The other one is a stunt that beats out the truck one a few years ago by Lawton Chiles and Bob Graham's 100 workdays.

That's when Idi Amin told the world last week he was taking a leave of absence from his job as president (or dictator or whatever else he claims to be) of Uganda to try his hand at Grand Prix racing.

Now, that's gotta be the topper, but then, how many politicians can afford to not only drive but own a formula one racing machine? On the other hand, while a lot of people would probably scream about wasting tax dollars, it might not be a bad idea to provide the money to buy race cars for all the members of Congress and urge them to join Amin on the raceways of the world.

BUT LEONID, THAT WAS THE DEAL... I GET ONE OF YOUR DISSIDENTS AND YOU GET ONE OF MINE.

That's a lot for a 13-year old

It isn't every day a 13-year old boy gets the chance to save a life and catch the attention of the city and the state, not to mention earning the thanks of the community in which he lives.

It doesn't happen every day but it happened last week for Andy Fontaine.

When 13-year old Andy pulled a still-unidentified young fisherman out of the Rim Canal, he drew attention of more than a few officials to an unsafe situation on the fender structure at the foot of the Rim Canal bridge.

There was a definite commitment Monday on the part of the DOT to make the fender system safer by fencing off the ends of the system from the shore, remove the ladder-gangplank from the fender and get the mayor and city manager interested in the possibility of turning the fender system into a fishing dock.

The fishing dock may or may not become a reality. If anything shoots down the idea, it'll be liability problems. But if Andy hadn't drawn the attention to the problem of 8-9 year old fishermen perching on a narrow six-inch beam, the possibility of a dock wouldn't have even been considered.

If the idea of the dock is unfeasible, then so be it but it's an idea which should be explored at the very least. But there's no question about the positive good coming from the DOT's commitment to make the structure more inaccessible and therefore safer.

If a kid decides he's going to fish from the fender, no fence is likely to stop him but it should at least make it somewhat harder to get to the danger zone.

All that is quite an accomplishment for a 13-year old. Andy is to be commended for bringing it to the community's attention.

And if that isn't enough, he should be double commended for diving into the deep main canal and pulling out a little boy who is still unidentified.

Spying on spies

The Central Intelligence Agency and at least two U.S. Senators are trying hard to figure out what to do about former CIA agent Phillip Agee, now that Agee's announced he's out to blow the whistle on every CIA agent operating abroad.

There were those to whom Agee was a hero when he wrote and published his book, "Inside the Company", an expose about the nation's largest intelligence agency, a few years ago.

There were those who even thought Agee was some kind of knight in shining armor when he left the CIA after 12 years to "expose all the dirty tricks" pulled by the CIA in recent years.

And there were those who thought Agee was a traitor for revealing national secrets, the stock in trade of any intelligence agency.

It appears as though Agee may have accented just where he does stand when he announced in Havana, Cuba last week he is setting up a world-wide system of informants to expose CIA agents around the globe.

The announcement itself would appear to be enough to try Agee for treason but the fact is there are no laws covering what he's done and is attempting to do.

And what he's attempting to do is nothing short of destroying the United States' intelligence network abroad and if CIA agents are endangered by having their cover blown, and they will be nothing if not endangered, then Agee said that's the responsibility of the CIA, not his.

Of course, if there are no laws covering what Agee's doing, there is already a precedent established by the CIA itself...something called "termination with extreme prejudice".

We're not, naturally, advocating murder. That's against the law but we can't help but hark back to the answer given by Ruffio in "Caesar and Cleopatra". About all one can do about a lion rampaging in the streets is to kill it, not as punishment for the people it has already killed but to protect other people in the streets.

And we do advocate the protection of other people in the streets.

Political pollution

It's a shame but with the upcoming political season, we can begin looking for the pollution season which invariably goes along with it.

We were happy to learn that at least one politician is aware of the problem and Ray Liberti, a candidate for the District 73 seat of the state House of Representatives, has instructed his campaign workers not to place any campaign signs, banners or bumper stickers on public property.

The bi-annual clutter of highways and by-ways has become accepted as a part of the political season and is regarded by some as a necessary part of choosing what politician will fill which seat.

It doesn't have to be that way. Even if it is that way, there's no reason on God's green earth a law requiring candidates to clean up their campaign debris shouldn't be passed and enforced.

Voter registration office open

BELLE GLADE—The Palm Beach County voter registration office at the County Glades Office Building will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, the last day to register for the Sept. 12 city and state primary elections.

The Supervisor of Elections mobile registration unit will also be in the Glades; at the Royal's Mini Plaza in South Bay from noon to 4 p.m. and at the Thriftway Grocery Store parking lot in Pahokee from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday for last minute registrations.

"Voters who have changed their address since the last election," Supervisor of Elections Jackie Winchester said, "are advised that a new law prohibits them from voting at their old polling place if they no longer live in the precinct."

"To change their address," Mrs. Winchester said, "they should notify the Supervisor of Elections by mailing in their old voter registration card, with the new address filled in on the back, to 810 Datura St., West Palm Beach, FL 33401."

She said a new card with the new precinct and polling location will be mailed to these voters. She urged voters to send in their change of address prior to the closing of the books on Aug. 12 so their registration will be transferred to the new precinct before election day.

The end of voter registration on Aug. 12 will close the books for both the primary election for county and state races and for the Belle Glade city election, since both elections take place the same day.

BELLE GLADE—Ernest J. McCroan of Wedgworth's, Inc. was named this week to the Action Council of the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB) in San Mateo, Cal. and Washington, D.C.

NFIB is a non-profit, non-partisan organization representing the needs of small businesses across the country. Founded in 1943, it was designed to promote the concept of free enterprise and to give independent business a greater voice in shaping the laws which govern business and government.

The idea of the Action Council Member was developed by NFIB President Wilson S. Johnson, who felt the need for members to take a more active role in furthering the cause of small and independent business at the grass roots and federal levels.

Candidate speaks to Pahokee Rotary

PAHOKEE—Eleanor Weinstock, Democratic candidate for District 79, Florida House of Representatives, gave the Pahokee Rotary Club a quick rundown of the eight issues Florida voters will face on the November 7th ballot, due to efforts of the Florida Constitution Revision Commission.

Mrs. Weinstock, wife and mother of three, agreed with comments made from several Rotarians that perhaps there are too many laws on the books now. The Palm Beach politician handed out cards to those attending the Tuesday luncheon meeting. The cards noted she has 20 years of experience in government service and community leadership.

She is past president for the State League of Women Voters and has served the League in Tallahassee for the last 15 years. She has chaired the County Sunshine Amendment Campaign and Corporate Profits Tax Campaign and is Palm Glades Girl Scout Council Director.

Mrs. Weinstock was appointed by Governor Reubin Askew to the Fuel Allocation and Conservation Council, the Florida Commission on the Status of Women and the Judges Nominating Commission, 15th Circuit.

The eight issues to face voters are: 1) The "catch all" article which contains many apparent non-controversial issues but also items such as separation of the Department of Health from the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. The article also includes the prohibition of state employees from having binding arbitration.

2) Discrimination on the basis of sex would be added to race, religion or physical handicap as unlawful discriminations. 3) The reapportionment article which would create a new body each ten years to reapportion the legislature instead of the legislature taking this action. Single member districts would also be provided for in this section.

4) Probably the most controversial issue, according to Mrs. Weinstock, is the appointment of cabinet members such as Secretary of State and Attorney General.

5) The Public Service Commission would be an appointed body of five. 6) Circuit and county judges would be appointed, making all judges appointed. 7) The tax article which would exempt private enterprise renting government property, from paying property taxes. 8) The state school board would be appointed.

Mrs. Weinstock agreed that it would be a better idea to have some, but not all, cabinet members appointed. She said those who were against appointed cabinet members, especially Dempsey Barron, pushed for an all-appointed cabinet to move others to reject the article, thus effecting no change.

She voiced a dislike for the barrage of special boards and commissions formed since, "for the most part, they get awfully narrow." She noted these bodies lobby for laws and regulations that suit them only, special interest groups, instead of the whole body of citizens.

Part 2

The phrase "Ours is a Bible church" sums up the third myth. How often we have heard the minister and ordained minister explain this to his congregation meeting in a special building. The board of administration uses well-organized drives and campaigns to secure funds. The building, itself, has representations of the Divinity or saints about, and the congregation sits to admire them on the first day of the week.

Not that these are undesirable, but they do mean that the church has modified Bible teachings to suit changing conditions. I firmly believe that in any age the church must reflect that historical period, and the church must exist in the present world, not in some historical past.

Let us freely admit this, instead of hoodwinking people into thinking Christ set up our denominational group which has existed unchanged from that time to this.

I would like to see a congregation initiating a strike against rent gouging, or capital punishment, or some other social evil.

If any church is going to proclaim that its theology is really Bible centered, then let us see this by its actions. Let us have parishioners so identified with the best parts of the Bible that they stand out like lighthouses in this dark world. We need ministers that are real forces in the community, not small souls engaged in small projects.

Perhaps it is myth number four that most turns people off from religious organizations. This is the minister's calm assumption that he speaks for God and, therefore, other people must be quiet and listen. In the Catholic church this has been traditionally combined with the belief that the priest partakes of the infallibility of the Pope. Of course, no priest will admit to such an ego-building philosophy, yet by his actions he often says over and over again that he does believe just that.

Protestant ministers, too, understand that only they have the keys to the gates of heaven. They often confuse going to church with entering heaven. Witness all the campaigns about regular church attendance.

Little is said about having a religious experience in your own home with other people, for the minister could not control that. A religious leader often prefers to settle any church discord by viewing it as a Biblical matter in which he is the expert.

In a world where presidential advisors spend time in jail, and giant companies are forced to recall inferior goods, the church's claim of infallibility is pretentious and overbearing. Even the Pope, who maintains he can't make mistakes when he speaks "ex cathedra," is very careful to avoid saying that at a particular time he is so speaking.

Myth number five is that the church, as an organization, expands slowly because of the innumerable malignant and powerful forces aligned against it.

Nonsense! Few persons have any real antagonism towards the church. On the contrary, most adults have a vague and correct feeling that this would be a better world if more people practiced what the church preaches.

By Bill Anderson
Pastor, First Baptist Church
South Bay

The church's great enemy is not the activity of the Devil, but the apathy of its own members. Few persons will openly resist the church, it is in no one's interest to do so.

The church takes few stands, and even when it does, it can bring no pressure upon anyone to conform, except in the small towns. It may be safely ignored by those that wish to do so, especially if they will openly express concern for the church and ignore it in secret.

Time was when the church spoke with the voice of thunder, and kings, presidents, and parliamentarians listened. Now the voice of the church is a mere whisper, able to shout only the weak and insignificant.

People do not consider that the church has the power to change itself or influence others. It is the scientists, the hippies, the alienated, and the minority groups, many of whom do not call themselves Christians, that are forcing improvements upon the world right now.

Perhaps it has always been the dissatisfied and the discerning that challenge us to be the kinds of persons we think we already are.

Our concern should not be with what the church thinks, or with what the other people wish, but with what Christ would have us do.

GOOD FRUITS

"The wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and GOOD FRUITS."

There are two forces at work in this world, evil and good. We have the freedom to choose between these two things.

"O taste and see that the Lord is good:

blessed is the man that trusteth in him."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long preserve and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

FRANK COLAVECCHIO, candidate for the District Four County Commission seat pauses in his talk to the Belle Glade Kiwanians last Thursday to make a point to Club President Tom Bonavia while Program Director Mel Chaney stands by.

Kiwaina hears candidate

BELLE GLADE—Frank Colavecchio, county commissioner candidate for District 4 in Palm Beach County, spoke to the Kiwanis Club last Thursday.

Colavecchio informed the club of some of his ideas and pledges to the residents of Palm Beach County if he is elected. He has already demonstrated his concern for the people, sometimes working unpaid to help improve health care conditions.

Colavecchio calls himself an "amateur politician." "When I become a professional, you won't be able to trust me," he said.

The county commission needs to get back to the people, Colavecchio said. Nobody really pays attention to the people out here. Just look at that roller coaster road coming out here. When election time comes, those seeking re-election patch up a few holes and then after election they forget all about it, he said.

According to Colavecchio, the citizens of Palm Beach County need an open government, one that is people-oriented. He proposes to move the commission meeting once a month to different accessible places around the county.

The Glades, like the Boca Raton-Delray Beach areas, are often neglected in the county and he intends to bring the government back to the people. Palm Beach County is growing at a very fast rate, presently it is 22 years behind delivering service to its residents.

Jack Eckhard talk attracts over 200 Glades residents Monday

BELLE GLADE—Republican gubernatorial candidate Jack Eckhard told a group of approximately 200 Monday in the Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative office building meeting room the state needs an executive for governor, more than anyone with legislative experience.

"The biggest business in Florida is the state government," Eckhard said after a luncheon at the Glades Sugar House, "and it's not being run that way. Florida needs a chief executive, more than anyone with legislative experience."

Eckhard was hosted by U.S. Sugar Corporation and the audience consisted mainly of growers from around the Glades area, coming from as far as Clewiston, and a sprinkling of politically active area Republicans.

Seated with him at the head table were U.S. Sugar vice president Robert Lee, who arranged the luncheon, Glades Republican Club Vice President David Goodlett and Bob Nichols, former news anchorman for Channel 5 TV who is now running as a Republican for the District 81 State House of Representatives seat now held by Ed Healey.

Eckhard hammered away through his talk and a question and answer session which followed on his business experience of building a multi-million dollar drugstore chain from a start with borrowed money, and the experience he had as head of the United States General Services Administration (GSA).

Citing two instances of that experience, Eckhard said one of his first ideas as head of the GSA was to find out what it cost for the federal government to construct a federal building compared to the cost for private industry.

"Nobody knew what it cost," he said, "and nobody seemed to care.

They figured the government was going to build the building anyway. Well, it turned out it cost the federal government 10 to 20 percent more to build than for private industry and it took an average of seven years instead of the two to three years it took private industry to do the job. We'd have been better off to contract out the job or to lease from private business."

The other item he recalled was that when he checked into the "fill rate" for federal warehouses. He said the fill rate is the rate at which requests from the using agencies are filled from the warehouses.

"That's something I know about," Eckhard said. "When my warehouses fill rate falls below 90 percent, they start hearing about it."

He said the fill rate, which no one had bothered to determine before, turned out to be 45 percent and that while enough foot lockers were warehoused around the country to last seven years, there was no carbon paper. He said by the time he left the GSA, the fill rate had been increased to 88 percent.

saving millions of dollars for the taxpayers.

Another item Eckhard stressed was the need to sell Florida to prospective industry, pointing out that Florida has been last among the states in the Southeast in recent years in attracting new businesses and in the number of new jobs.

"We've allowed it to become commonly accepted," he said, "that we don't want new industry...and we have so much to sell. It (attracting businesses) will be the easiest job I'll have and I don't plan to do it by giving breaks in ad valorem taxes either. I don't believe in that. We have so much to sell."

Eckhard said the state has three major selling points to prospective industries, including the right to work law, the environment, which he said was one of the main reasons he originally came to the state, and one of the most attractive packages to draw employees in the country. He said the package is made up of no state income tax and, no sales tax on food and drugs.

He said he has already begun forming a committee of retired executives to talk to people they've formerly done business with to attract new industries to the state. He said some retirees have already said they'd be glad to work for expenses and have expressed confidence in their ability to draw business.

During a question and answer session, Eckhard admitted he didn't know much about farming and the environment, two subjects which came up, but he believes one of the most important qualities of a governor is his ability to surround himself with qualified people and he believes he can do that.

Answering a question by George Wedgworth, Eckhard said he has the philosophy that while a clean environment is important, he believes also that any environmental project must be balanced against the cost.

"Someone might tell me this is what we want," he said, "and I'm going to say to him, 'Fine, now tell me what it's going to cost and who's going to pay it.'"

He said he is also aware of the problem in improving SR80 and pointed out that if he is elected, he intends to document the need for the improvements, then he intends to go to the legislature.

"I realize I'll be dealing with a legislature with Democrats for committee chairman," he said, "and that's fine. I intend to try to work with them, not fight them, but if I approach them with the documented need for improvements to SR80 and don't get cooperation, I'll still control the Department of Transportation and I'll go public." He also said he already plans to come up with a formula by 1980 on how to put an absolute cap on the level of state government but said he doesn't believe he should attempt that in the heat of the campaign.

coach and human relations counselor and said he would like to see more money for teachers and more money channeled into grades K through three because these are the formative years in a student's life.

He will be talking to each faculty member in the Glades and said he wants an open line of communication between teachers and board members.

Rotary hears of city budget

BELLE GLADE—Mayor Tom Altman had some good news and some bad news for the local Rotary Club Tuesday. The good news was a slightly decreased budget, and millage rate and the bad news was a 35 percent increase in water and sewer rates.

Mainly because of a decrease in capital improvements, he said, the budget is down. And while nobody likes the water and sewer rate increase, he said this was necessary for the services to pay their own way. In years past, water and sewer has been subsidized from the general fund. "The philosophy is for those who use the service to pay for it," said Altman.

The young mayor also pointed out issues the Rotarians and other in the city need to be aware of, including the 201 and 208 plans. The 201 plan is a regional concept of sewer disposal and Altman said it appears the only dispute left to the city is deep-well injection.

The 208 program is a "non-point" program of pollution control from sources such as stormwater and agricultural back-pumping. Altman said management of this program will be of vital importance to the Glades and noted he hoped the South Florida Water Management District would be given this authority.

Also speaking briefly to the Rotarians was James J. James, candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives for the seat now held by Paul Rogers. James thanked Glades residents for the support he has had from the area in previous years as a state representative and said he hoped the area would again support him.

Two other candidates recognized by the Rotarians who attended the meeting were Ron Sanson, Republican candidate for the County Commission, district 4 and John Northern, non-partisan candidate at the school board, district 4.

fore the youngster fell into the canal, although he had been throwing them back as fast as he caught them.

"I like to catch them," he said, "but they're too much trouble to clean."

After his rescue operation, Andy, who had been dropped off at the canal earlier by his mother, said he walked across the bridge to Slim's Fish Camp to phone a friend to come pick him up.

That was on Tuesday morning. Friday, when they first heard about the event, both David Smith, State Department of Transportation (DOT) maintenance engineer for Palm Beach County and Belle Glade Mayor Tom Altman expressed interest.

Smith dispatched his assistant, James Eldridge, to the scene Monday and Eldridge said he believed he could take steps to ensure the county departments, statements of established county policy and administrative regulations, including a personnel system.

• Mandate several functions of the county commission now being carried out voluntarily, including prevention of conflicts of interest, protection of the environment, protection of consumer rights, protection of human rights and an annual audit independent of the state's.

• Abolish the constitutional office of sheriff, coronator, property appraiser, supervisor of elections and clerk of the court and immediately replace them with elective charter officials. The major changes here would be that the officers, except the sheriff, would be required to use the county's personnel system, that all officers would submit their budgets to the commission for approval and would use the county purchasing system. In addition, the clerk of the county's function as clerk of the commission would be split away and a similar office added under the county administrator.

• The county attorney would report directly to the commission rather than to the commission and to each of the several charter officials.

Set up a Fair Tax Council to determine which county functions would be paid for strictly by residents of unincorporated areas and which would be paid for by both city and out-of-city residents.

• Set up a system of initiative referendums. This system, which fender system would be made more inaccessible by the last part of this week.

The boys had walked onto the fender over a ladder stretching from the bank to the catwalk atop the structure. Eldridge said the ladder, made of two 4x4 beams connected by steel rungs, had hung from the bridge but had been taken down several weeks ago because of one of the bolts holding it to the bridge had been removed.

"They said they hauled it way up the bank," Eldridge said. "I guess someone hauled it back down and put it up here so it could be used for a gangplank."

The DOT maintains a catwalk made of short lengths of 2x6 planks nailed atop the six and eight inch beams forming the fender system but Eldridge noted a large number of the planks had been torn up without being replaced.

"This is our fault," he said. "I'd guess it's just a communications problem because I'm sure it's been noticed before."

He said he would have a crew out this week to put the ladder back on the bridge where it belongs and to replank the catwalk. He said he would also have chain link fences installed at each end of the fender system to prevent anyone from climbing aboard there.

Mayor Altman, who was at the bridge Monday with City Manager Robert R. Sanders and City Attorney John Baker, along with Eldridge, said, however, he would like to see the city explore the possibility of decking over the structure and put up railing to use it as a fishing dock.

Eldridge said he would contact his superiors in the DOT to get their reaction and Sanders said he would write to DOT District Engineer William Fowler in Fort Lauderdale.

Baker said the primary problem will probably be one of liability. Although the structure is already an attractive nuisance because it is too from the bank to the catwalk atop the structure. Eldridge said the ladder, made of two 4x4 beams connected by steel rungs, had hung from the bridge but had been taken down several weeks ago because of one of the bolts holding it to the bridge had been removed.

"They said they hauled it way up the bank," Eldridge said. "I guess someone hauled it back down and put it up here so it could be used for a gangplank."

The DOT maintains a catwalk made of short lengths of 2x6 planks nailed atop the six and eight inch beams forming the fender system but Eldridge noted a large number of the planks had been torn up without being replaced.

"This is our fault," he said. "I'd guess it's just a communications problem because I'm sure it's been noticed before."

He said he would have a crew out this week to put the ladder back on the bridge where it belongs and to replank the catwalk. He said he would also have chain link fences installed at each end of the fender system to prevent anyone from climbing aboard there.

Mayor Altman, who was at the bridge Monday with City Manager Robert R. Sanders and City Attorney John Baker, along with Eldridge, said, however, he would like to see the city explore the possibility of decking over the structure and put up railing to use it as a fishing dock.

Eldridge said he would contact his superiors in the DOT to get their reaction and Sanders said he would write to DOT District Engineer William Fowler in Fort Lauderdale.

Baker said the primary problem will probably be one of liability. Although the structure is already an attractive nuisance because it is too from the bank to the catwalk atop the structure. Eldridge said the ladder, made of two 4x4 beams connected by steel rungs, had hung

Candidate James says experience is the key

BELLE GLADE—Experience is the key, U.S. Congressional candidate Bill James said here Tuesday and cited his ten years of experience in the state legislature as the reason why District 11 voters should replace retiring Congressman Paul Rogers with him.

The Republican candidate is the retiring House Minority Leader and said in an interview at The Herald that he believes his strong selling points in the race is that he is the only candidate for the seat with ten years of legislative experience, that his effectiveness has been measured by being chosen for two years the most effective legislator in debate, along with being House Minority Leader and has also collected honors from several polls for his effectiveness.

James said one of the difficulties he feels he must overcome is that being unopposed means he must work during the primaries to make sure he doesn't lose points on name recognition while the three Democratic candidates are battling it out in early races.

While he may not have to worry about name recognition in his state representative district, he said he isn't so well known among the 54,000 Republican voters in northern Broward County.

One of the things James said he is interested in, should he be elected, is governmental reform. "If somebody has looked at the federal government," he said, "the options are wide open. For instance, I believe they should have television coverage without editing it, like public television does with the state legislature."

He said he doesn't believe it's proper to publicly discuss sensitive matters but day-to-day activities should be public.

Another area he expressed interest in is the economy. "I believe the only thing that's come along better than Proposition 13 is a Resolution 14 that's being considered right now in Congress."

He said Resolution 14 would require the government to use a balanced budget, would require the government to pay off the national debt within 100 years and would only allow deficit spending in cases of national emergency.

James said he has borrowed a leaf from Rogers' book by using the same system he's used to serve his constituents and said it has worked well for him. He said one of the things about Rogers that has impressed him most has been his ability to get results quickly for constituents with problems.

NEW FOOTBALL COACH Ben McCoy (far right) arrived at Glades Central High School Tuesday and was welcomed by (from left) GCHS Athletic Director Graham Frost, Principal Effie Grear and Assistant Principal Norman Shearin. Frost said a reception will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Glades Central main campus library to give McCoy a chance to meet players, parents, coaches and the general public.

Hours are changed for license bureau

PAHOKEE—The hours of operation of the Drivers License Bureau of the Florida Highway Patrol office here have been changed to 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday and Wednesday, as of Aug. 1, according to Sgt. George Price.

The bureau, as of July 31, will no longer be open for business on Fridays.

Woman hurt in scramble

PAHOKEE—Catherine Bigham of month of August when the mobile 761 Waddell Way, Padgett Island, found out last week that a person can literally suffer broken bones in the food stamp line, especially when there's a stampede.

According to Ethel Barnes, president of the Pahokee Housing Authority Tenants Association, the woman was knocked down and her wrist broken, when people ran after numbers that two guards threw up in the air.

She said 200 to 300 people show up for food stamps during the unit comes to Padgett Island. Usually, she said, the security guards are supposed to hand out the numbers but they have been throwing them up in the air causing people to scramble to get a number to be served.

"I think it's a poor system they've got set up," Mrs. Barnes stated. "Nowadays, you don't throw a dog a bone."

Mrs. Bigham was taken to Everglades Memorial Hospital and later transferred to Doctor's Hospital.

Local woman hired as new pharmacist

BELLE GLADE—A local woman was hired recently as a new pharmacist at Wallis Pharmacy, a month after graduating from the University of Florida School of Pharmacy and a year after completing her internship with Wallis.

Store owner Danny Wallis said Mrs. Miriam Alvarez began as a registered pharmacist in his Belle Glade store Monday, July 31.

Mrs. Alvarez said she was graduated from the University of Florida in June and only recently completed her boards. She said she and her family moved to Belle Glade in 1971 and she is a 1973 graduate of Glades Central High School.

She lives with her husband, Jose Alvarez, at 116 N.E. Third St.

Wallis said Mrs. Alvarez completed her 1500 hours of internship in two blocks during the summers of 1976 and 1977.

First Baptist continues career in providing upsets for league

By Karen Hunsford

BELLE GLADE—The team of First Baptist Church of Belle Glade pulled a stunning upset of South Bay Growers and went on to defeat the Miami Herald in Glades Women's softball action last week.

Trailing 3-0 after three innings, the First Baptist batters exploded for five runs in the fourth, one of them a triple by Brenda Davis. That inning was the only one in which they scored, but it proved to be the difference as the team held on for the win, 5-3. South Bay's runs came in the first and third innings, with Kim Miller, Neida Hall and Mary Lou Stevens rounding the bases.

The defeat was South Bay Growers' second of the season, having previously lost to Wallis Pharmacy.

Community United Methodist Church (CUMC) rallied for five runs in the fifth inning to dump Wallis Pharmacy 9-7 in six innings of play on Tuesday, August 1.

Wallis took an early lead in the first inning, with six runs after holding CUMC to no score. Judy Clayton rounded the bases in the second for CUMC's first run, then Marie Cranford crossed the plate in the third inning for the second run. Wallis added one in that inning on Annette Davis' run to make it 7-2.

CUMC added two in the fourth and then broke loose in the fifth inning for the marginal runs. The boost gave the girls all the momentum they needed as they played top-notch defense. Wallis' last scoring threat was broken when first baseman Marie Cranford snagged a line drive and stepped on first base for a double play. Second baseman Sharon Himphey caught a fly for the last out, making the score 9-7.

In the other game that evening, Dixie Fried Chicken trounced the Bank of Pahokee 10-3 in six innings of play.

Both teams scored a run in the second inning, then after allowing two by the Bank of Pahokee in the top of the third, Dixie Fried's offense broke through for seven runs, sending 13 batters to the plate. The girls added two more in the fourth inning, run by Joy Moore and Awilda Rosario, then held the Pahokee team to no gain for their second win of the year.

In a make-up game played last Monday night in Canal Point, First Baptist Church scored four runs in the third and five in the fourth to edge by Miami Herald, 9-7.

Donna Doney slammed her second over-the-fence homerun for Miami Herald in the fourth inning, knocking in two of the four runs.

Miami Herald had taken the lead 5-0 in the first two innings, with Jeannie Britt the first to cross the plate. First Baptist bounced back in the third, taking advantage of three costly errors for four runs. The girls struck again in the fourth inning for the five runs, leading by four.

Doney's homer in the bottom of the fourth threatened to bring Miami Herald within reach of the triumph as the team put the tying runs on first and second. The rally was squelched, however, as pitcher Liz Canonico stabbed a ground hit and threw to third base for the third out.

Miami Herald put a runner on base in the fifth inning, but she was caught off base as shortstop Paula Anderson speared a line drive and threw to first for a double play. A sharp throw by right fielder Jim Cunningham to first base was in time for the final out of the game, with the score 9-7, in favor of First Baptist Church. The game was called after five innings because of the expired time limit.

Glades Women's Softball League Standings as of 8/7/78: First Baptist Church, 7-2; South Bay Growers, 6-2; CUMC, 6-3; Miami Herald, 6-3; Wallis Pharmacy, 6-3; Dixie Fried Chicken, 2-7; Local 2152, 1-7; Bank of Pahokee, 1-8.
